Policy Issue Resources

Prosecutors and state representatives have tried to weaponize Illinois Department of Corrections (IDOC) release information. They have conflated people who served their entire sentences with people who were released early. They've conflated discretionary sentencing credit-based releases with clemencies. Read more here.

Restore Justice is working to provide transparency. We'll update this page as new information is made available.

As of 6/1/20:

IDOC records appear to show 1,222 people have been released early. (This is separate from the clemencies Governor JB Pritzker has granted.) Its possible some of these people served their full sentences.

Nearly 57 percent of the people released early were serving time for Class 3 and Class 4 felonies, the lowest level felonies in Illinois criminal code.

Of those released early:

In addition to early releases, 109 people have received furloughs. This follows Governor Pritzker's executive order to allow medically vulnerable people to be temporarily removed from prison.

In total, 5,637 people have been released. At least 4,415 of them served their entire sentences. They just happened to have release dates in March-June.
