Campaign and Advocacy

Simply put, people navigating their immigration case should be able to do so with their families and in community, not behind bars in immigration detention.

The threat of a coronavirus outbreak at immigration detention facilities is imminent. People locked up in immigration detention are extremely vulnerable to the spread of infectious disease due to their deprivation of liberty, deteriorating health while in detention, and the track record of fatally flawed medical care in Immigration and Customs Enforcements (ICE) and Customs and Border Protections (CBP) custody.

Now facing a global health crisis, ICE's shameful record of medical negligence, limited and rotten food provisions, poor sanitation, and demonstrated inability to properly respond to past infectious disease outbreaks means that there is a serious risk of COVID-19 outbreaks at immigration detention centers.
