Nonviolence Alliance of Greater Cincinnati Finds Its Voice

Pursuing Peace in Cincinnati acted as a launch for what started as Nonviolent Cincinnati - an initiative inspired by Peace e Bene's Nonviolent Cities campaign. The next afternoon, thirty community members gathered to begin building a framework for the movement.

Over the course of several meetings, changes occurred. Nonviolent Cincinnati was renamed the Nonviolence Alliance of Greater Cincinnati to be inclusive of our members in Northern Kentucky and to reflect our relationship as allies in the pursuit of a peaceful community. The group developed a mission statement: To imagine practice and promote a Nonviolent Greater Cincinnati by working toward solidarity with individuals and organizations to dismantle structures of violence.

There are many regional organizations addressing societal concerns such as homelessness, gun violence, and domestic abuse. The Alliance does not aim to replicate work, but to bring stakeholders together to articulate a shared vision of a transformed community.

What is unique about the Nonviolence Alliance is its potential to unify and lift up this shared vision, to elevate public awareness of the pervasive and devastating effects that the culture of violence has on individuals and on our community as a whole. We have the potential to awaken the imagination, inject hopeful confidence that what can be imagined can be achieved, and provide opportunities to learn a new Nonviolent approach to solving our social ills. Through the Nonviolence Alliance, we can provide a platform for those who are most directly impacted by violence, as they have the most at stake. Through their narratives, we will learn.

In the coming weeks, the proposed structure and annual plan will be solidified, and we will begin to live into our mission. If you are interested in hearing more about the Nonviolence Alliance of Greater Cincinnati, a member would be happy to talk with you or your group.
