Public Facing Advocacy Writing

(WASHINGTON, D.C., 10/25/21) The Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR), the nations largest Muslim civil rights and advocacy organization, today called on President Biden to strongly challenge Israels announced plans to build 1,355 new apartheid* homes for Jewish settlers on occupied Palestinian land in the West Bank. These homes would be in addition to the more than 2,000 segregated Israeli settler-only homes announced in August. [*Like in segregated housing in apartheid-era South Africa, the homes would not be available to those who are native to the land.]

CAIR also called on President Biden to condemn Israels recent attack on Palestinian human rights groups by designating them as terrorist institutions.

As reported on the news and opinion about Palestine website Mondoweiss, the designation effectively outlaws the activities of these civil society groups, and allows Israeli authorities to take a number of measures against them, including closing down their offices, seizing their assets, and arresting and jailing staff members and criminalizes the funding or public expression of support for the organizations and their activities.

While the Biden administration has previously said it opposes unilateral Israeli settlement construction on occupied Palestinian land and such projects being illegal under international law the White House has failed to publicly challenge the Israeli government over its continued expansion of segregated settler housing projects and expulsion of dozens of Palestinian families in Silwan, Sheikh Jarrah and elsewhere.

On Friday, State Department spokesperson Ned Price told reporters that the U.S. was concerned about Israels planned expansion of settlements, We are concerned about the announcement of a meeting next week to advance settlement units deep in the West Bank, and believe it is critical for Israel and the Palestinian Authority to refrain from unilateral steps that exacerbate tension and undercut efforts to advance a negotiated two-state solution.

In a statement, CAIR National Executive Director Nihad Awad said:

American Muslims and all others concerned about justice and international law call on President Biden to publicly challenge the Israeli government over its continued illegal expansion of apartheid settler homes on occupied Palestinian land and the eviction of dozens of Palestinian families from their homes.

CAIR also calls on the Biden administration to condemn Israels recent attack on leading Palestinian human rights groups by labeling them as terrorist institutions.

The Biden Administrations muted reactions to these and other crimes is emboldening the Israeli apartheid government to commit more crimes. Public pressure is necessary.

CAIR has previously called on the Biden administration to hold Israel accountable for its violations of human rights and end support for Israeli aggression.

In August, CAIR joined Americans for Justice in Palestine Action and other civil and human rights organizations to protest outside the White House as President Biden welcomed Israeli Prime Minister Naftali Bennett to Washington, D.C.

The groups demanded an end to the Israeli governments ongoing and systematic violations of Palestinian human rights, and the Biden administrations unconditional support for Israeli apartheid.

The protest also called for an end to US military and diplomatic support of all human rights violations, including an immediate halt to forced expulsions of Palestinians from their homes in Jerusalem, and the suffocating siege of Gaza.

CAIR has called on President Biden and U.S. Department of Homeland Security Secretary Alejandro Mayorkas to reject Israel Envoy to the U.S. Gilad Erdans August request for a U.S. Visa Waiver Program deal without a firm guarantee of reciprocal travel privileges for all Americans including Muslim, Palestinian and Arab-American travelers who often face severe entry restrictions or outright travel bans when entering Israel it would create an unequal system that benefits Israel while harming the United States.

In July, CAIR welcomed the U.S. State Departments call for an end to Israels illegal collective punishment demolitions of Palestinian homes following the leveling of a house in which the family of a Palestinian-American attack suspect was living.

In June, CAIR called on the Biden administration to condemn the Israeli governments ongoing demolition of 100 Palestinian homes and businesses in the Silwan neighborhood in East Jerusalem to build a religious theme park on the land.

In June, CAIR also joined a coalition of more than 100 national organizations calling on President Biden to stop the sale of $735 million in advanced weapons to Israel.

The sale would include the same type of missiles that were used by Israeli forces to kill more than 200 civilians, including more than 60 children, and destroy residential buildings in Gaza.

In March, CAIR joined more than 130 organizations led by the U.S. Council of Muslim Organizations (USCMO), American Muslims for Palestine (AMP) and activists for the National March for Palestine in Washington, D.C., to support mounting international pressure on Israels attacks against Palestinian civilians, particularly children, hospitals, homes, schools, and libraries.
