This portfolio details Vera's work in the last six months of 1994. During this period Vera build a crime mapping tool for the NYPD, began examining the impact of the nation's extraordinarily high level of incarceration on the communities from which the prisoners come from and return to, and launched a New York County project analyzing new ways that lawyers are assigned to represent indigent defendants in criminal cases. Portfolio subjects include the Neighborhood Work and Vocational Development projects, Job Path, The Neighborhood Defender Service of Harlem, Project Development and Exploratory Research, Community Policing, Sentencing Reform, and Courts and the Adversary System.
