Today, the United States incarcerates more children than any other nation. On the 25th Anniversary of the passage of the treaty, join national and local experts on how a childrens rights framework can be used to fight against harsh penalties for juveniles.

This webinar emphasizes legislative and judicial responses to the U.S. Supreme Courts 2012 ruling, Miller v. Alabama, which eliminated the use of mandatory life without parole sentences for juveniles.

Presenters:

Xavier McElrath-Bey and James Dold, Campaign for the Fair Sentencing of Youth
Josh Rovner, The Sentencing Project
Betsy Clarke, Juvenile Justice Initiative
