Awful scores on nations report card show severe damage from closing classrooms

Netflix is paying Barack and Michelle Obama millions of dollars to produce shows for them.

The hosts discuss various ethical scenarios of three big upcoming holidays.

OPINION: "My original thought was, 'Why would anybody vote for Kari Lake, or any other candidate if they had no faith in our election system?' Now I understand. Because nobody wants to be a loser. And, with her or the others they cant lose," writes Oro Valley resident Ray Lindstrom.

OPINION: "Im hoping other young immigrants wont have to make such agonizing choices. In just a few short weeks, Arizonans will be able to vote on Proposition 308, a measure allowing immigrants whove lived in Arizona for more than two years and graduated from an Arizona high school to qual

With my best friend riding shotgun and my two dogs in the back seat of my Buick Encore, I made the road trip from Washington, D.C., to Chicago last month for the ordination and consecration of Paula E. Clark, the first female bishop, and first Black bishop, of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago. Shes also my mom.

Even though special master Ken Feinberg, who was in charge of the first federal Sept. 11 Victim Compensation Fund, distributed $6 billion to the estates of those killed on 9/11 an average of more than $2 million to the nearly 3,000 victims the House of Representatives passed its new Fairness for 9/11 Families Act to allow additional claims for the deaths inflicted by the terrorists and set aside $2.7 billion for them.

OPINION: "Arizonans have long enjoyed an expansive right to make law via referendum, though doing so requires great attention to detail and a massive effort to collect signatures. This year, however, the Legislature is asking you to make it harder to have your say," writes Sybil Francis,president and CEO of Center for the Future of Arizona.

OPINION: "Kirsten Engel might not care about protecting our state, but I have spent years doing so and I always will. I support Juan Ciscomani because he can be trusted to back our law enforcement, secure the border and keep our communities safe, something Kirsten Engel knows nothing about," writes Justin Harris, president of the Arizona Police Association.

A small but vocal contingent of the New York City's political class characterizes those of us who are alarmed by increasing crime and want more proactive policing, more effective prosecution and further refinement of state laws to ensure that lawbreakers face swift, sure consequences as nothing but reactionaries. The city remains historically safe, they say, so the order of the day should be more criminal justice reform.

Historian Jeremi Suri discusses America post-Civil War and the lessons that can be applied to the current state of politics on the Utterly Moderate Podcast.

The slowing economy and technical recession helped drive down the demand for oil, thus lowering gasoline prices at the pump. But today, OPEC+, including Russia, announced it would cut its oil production by 2 million barrels a day. In response, Biden announced the release of 10 million barrel

With all the fuss about migrants coming across the border there appears to be no effort to separate immigrants from asylum seekers.

Reading Sharon Bronsons penned letter supporting Mr. Clinco, it was obvious the opinion was written for her signature. I suspect Bronsons knowledge of PCCs issues is limited and as did other mainstream local democrats who donated to Clinco's campaign reflects their shortsighted loyalty.
