There are so many ways you can celebrate this day and support Indigenous people while doing so! See reflections below on what Indigenous Peoples Day means to staff at the ACLU of Montana.

A Montana court today struck down as unconstitutional two state laws that hinder Native American participation in the states electoral process.

The Montana Supreme Court today affirmed a preliminary injunction blocking a state law that hinders Native American participation in the states electoral process.

A Montana judge ruled today the state may not prevent transgender people from updating their birth certificates while the case challenging the constitutionality of SB 280 proceeds.

We envision a Montana where everybody is treated with dignity and respect and has equal access to democracy, justice, equality, and liberty - no matter the political, social, or economic landscape.
