

Equal Justice Initiative

Criminal Justice Issues and Prisoners' Rights

<https://eji.org/news/alabama-releases-terminally-ill-omar-rahman-under-new-medical-furlough-bill/>

Policy Issue Resources

Criminal Justice Reform

Racial Justice

Anti-Poverty

Public Education

124 results for "Prison"

06.03.09

The Alabama Department of Corrections granted its first medical furlough to Omar Rahman under a new law that allows for release of some geriatric, incapacitated, or terminally ill prisoners.

The Alabama Medical Furlough Act took effect on September 1, 2008, and permits release of inmates 55 years of age or older who suffer from a chronic debilitating or life-threatening infirmity or illness and pose no danger to themselves or to society.

Terminally ill inmates who have an incurable disease and are expected not to live more than a year, as well as inmates suffering from a permanent, irreversible physical or mental condition that prevents criminal or violent activity and requires assistance with daily living and health care, are eligible for release under the new law.

In December 2008, EJI assisted Omar Rahman, age 56, to petition the Department of Corrections for a medical furlough. Mr. Rahman was diagnosed in June 2008 with chronic Hepatitis C, which led to severe cirrhosis of the liver. As a result of complications from liver cirrhosis, Mr. Rahman developed terminal liver cancer. Doctors determined that his cancer was inoperable and gave him six to twelve months to live.

Mr. Rahman served over 26 years in prison without a single violent disciplinary incident, and had had no disciplinary infractions of any kind in over ten years. He was a tutor at the prison school and participated in the Dhamma Brothers Project, a self-improvement initiative emphasizing spiritual exploration and meditation.

Medical furlough for geriatric, terminally ill inmates like Mr. Rahman who pose no danger to the community can help to ease crowding and financial pressures on the Department of Corrections, which faces rapidly escalating medical expenses as Alabamas prison population ages.

Mr. Rahman was released to the care of his family on April 21, 2009. Unfortunately, he died about 30 hours later.

Tags:

Mass Incarceration

Prison Conditions

Birmingham News

EJI Releases New Report on the Transatlantic Slave Trade

Daniel Smith, Believed to Be the Last Child of Enslaved People, Dies at 90

Homicide at Limestone Is 16th in Alabama Prisons This Year

EJI Partners Across the Country Dedicate Markers Recognizing Lynchings

122 Commerce Street Montgomery, AL 36104 \(334\) 269-1803269-1803) [\[emailprotected\]](#)

Subscribe to our newsletter

Equal Justice Initiative 2022