

National Religious Campaign Against Torture

Torture, Former Combatants, Political Prisoners, Terror Suspects, & Terrorists

https://richmond.com/opinion/their-opinion/columnists-blogs/guest-columnists/article_e9beefec-5313-572e-87b2-c762663ad709.html

Public Facing Advocacy Writing

As people of faith, our Scripture teaches us not to render evil for evil but to seek what is good; we cannot remain silent when evil is carried out in our name or in the name of security. Our peoples security is in the Lord who made heaven and earth. We should not justify or sit complacently as evil is done in our name; doing so violates who we are as citizens and desecrates us as a people of faith.

Thankfully, in April, the Constitution Projects high-level, bipartisan Task Force on Detainee Treatment Project issued its report on the United States use of torture during the Clinton, Bush and Obama administrations. Based on its work over a two-year period, the task force concluded that the United States indisputably engaged in torture and cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment of detainees in violation of U.S. and international law. Military and intelligence officials authorized, condoned and committed interrogation techniques that the United States had previously condemned as illegal when used by others, including waterboarding, stress positions, extended sleep deprivation, sexual humiliation and prolonged solitary confinement. The distinguished, bipartisan credentials of the task force members including Dr. Azizah Y. al-Hibri, professor emerita at the T.C. Williams School of Law, University of Richmond, who in 2011 was appointed by President Obama to serve as a commissioner on the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom legitimized its conclusions. Torture is an issue that we all must confront in order to move forward on higher moral ground.

The torture occurred in many instances and across a wide range of theaters. The task force found that the arguments that the nation did not engage in torture and that much of what occurred should be defined as something less than torture are not credible.

The panel found no firm or persuasive evidence that [the use of torture] produced significant information of value. In fact, the task force found that [t]here is substantial evidence that much of the information adduced from [torture] was not useful or reliable.

While the task forces report is an important component in our national discussion, the groups findings are just a start. The American people should have all of the facts on torture. What we need now is for the Senate Intelligence Committee to release the report of its review of millions of pages of classified materials evidence that the task force was not privileged to. The practice of torture is counterproductive to our nations interests and is in direct conflict with the values of the people of this nation. To ensure that we never torture again, the American people need to know the facts.

Jesus admonishes us in Luke 19:40: He answered, I tell you if these were silent, the stones would shout out. The Virginia Council of Churches joins with the National Religious Campaign Against Torture in encouraging Sen. Mark Warner to urge the Senate Intelligence Committee, on which he serves, to make its findings public. Silence on this matter from the American people can be interpreted as condoning the practice of torture, placing us on the path to becoming the very evil we so deplore.

The Rev. Jon Barton is the general minister for the Virginia Council of Churches. He also serves on the board of the Virginia Interfaith Center for Public Policy and the Commission on Interreligious Relations of the National Council of Churches. Contact him at Barton@vcc-net.org or (804) 321-3300.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON

This is an opinion column from The Times-Dispatch.

This is an opinion column from The Times-Dispatch.

This is an opinion column from The Times-Dispatch opinion page.

This is an opinion column from The Times-Dispatch opinion page.

People dont take trips trips take people, wrote novelist John Steinbeck, a guy who would know: He traveled extensively and also served as

The media have been obsessed with inflation for the last year and a half, reporting that this is the only economic issue that matters to people

Gov. Glenn Youngkins recently announced $30 million effort to recruit and attract police officers in the commonwealth is a well-intentioned e

Historian Jeremi Suri discusses America post-Civil War and the lessons that can be applied to the current state of politics on the Utterly Moderate Podcast.

Historian Jeremi Suri discusses America post-Civil War and the lessons that can be applied to the current state of politics on the Utterly Moderate Podcast.

In a recent Washington Post article, Andrew Van Dam writes about the most-regretted college majors (spoiler alert: its mostly in the humaniti

With my best friend riding shotgun and my two dogs in the back seat of my Buick Encore, I made the road trip from Washington, D.C., to Chicago last month for the ordination and consecration of Paula E. Clark, the first female bishop, and first Black bishop, of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago. Shes also my mom.

With my best friend riding shotgun and my two dogs in the back seat of my Buick Encore, I made the road trip from Washington, D.C., to Chicago last month for the ordination and consecration of Paula E. Clark, the first female bishop, and first Black bishop, of the Episcopal Diocese of Chicago. Shes also my mom.

Get up-to-the-minute news sent straight to your device.