Campaign and Advocacy

Vera's Family Justice Program helps corrections, parole, and probation staff draw on families as a positive influence for their loved ones in the justice system. This five minute video, developed with support from the Bureau of Justice Assistance and the Public Welfare Foundation, depicts how this approach is being implemented by corrections, parole and probation in Oklahoma City. The video was directed by Brian Quist.

Art and Writing from Inside Prison Walls during COVID-19

Imagine if some of the money spent on policing was instead invested in New Orleans youth, their families, and their neighborhoods. Youth are supposed to be our future, so ensuring their healthy development into thriving, educated, and engaged New Orleanians should be our priority. A native New Orleanian, I went to Benjamin Franklin High School, whe ...

In February 2018, Hernandez, upset about a change in location for her special education program, wrote, Im coming tomorrow morning and Im going to shoot all of ya bitches, on East High Schools Facebook page. She was charged with making a terroristic threat. She pled guilty to third-degree falsely reporting an incident, a misdemeanor offense, a ...
