Solitary Watch

Criminal Justice Issues and Prisoners' Rights

https://solitarywatch.org/2015/03/22/seven-days-in-solitary-3222015/

Campaign and Advocacy

close Search
close
close by Aviva Stahl March 22 2015

The following roundup features noteworthy news, reports and opinions on solitary confinement from the past week that have not been covered in other Solitary Watch posts.

ThinkProgress published an article about one unexpected reason whyRepublican support for prison reform is increasing. Conservatives are increasingly joining the fight to end solitary confinement on the basis that it constitutes a form of torture and undermines principles of morality and personhood.

Solitary Watchs Sarah Shourd covered the release of Juan Mendezs findings from his tour of Californias Pelican Bay State Prison, a facility known for keeping individuals in indefinite solitary confinement. Theres no doubt in my mind this is torture, Mendez concluded.

A federal judge issued a strong ruling against currently and formerly incarcerated plaintiffs, in an ongoing lawsuit intended to challenge the Bureau of Prisons Communication Management Units. Judge Barbara Rothstein wrote that the Bureau of Prisons units do not violate inmates rights because the additional restrictions are limited in nature compared to ordinary prison units, and are far better than solitary confinement.

The Texas Observer published a second article in a series entitled Letters from Death Row, this one focused on the effect of solitary confinement. The author writes, Long periods of solitary confinement can result in loss of speech, and quotes from a survey participant on the inside. When you live in an environment where nearly everyone is hostile to you, you learn to say less and less until you arrive at the point where vocalization seems increasingly odd to you.

Aviva Stahl is a Brooklyn-based reporter who writes about science/health at the intersection of mass incarceration, national security, and trans rights. Shes written for the New York Times, Wired, Buzzfeed News, Solitary Watch, and other outlets. Find her @stahlidarity and at stahlidarity.com.

Accurate information and authentic storytelling can serve as powerful antidotes to ignorance and injustice. We have helped generate public awareness, mainstream media attention, and informed policymaking on what was once an invisible domestic human rights crisis.

Only with your support can we continue this groundbreaking work, shining light into the darkest corners of the U.S. criminal punishment system.

by Caitlin Konya

October 19, 2022

by Mirilla Zhu

October 12, 2022

by Caitlin Konya

October 5, 2022

Solitary Watch encourages comments and welcomes a range of ideas, opinions, debates, and respectful disagreement. We do not allow name-calling, bullying, cursing, or personal attacks of any kind. Any embedded links should be to information relevant to the conversation. Comments that violate these guidelines will be removed, and repeat offenders will be blocked. Thank you for your cooperation.

P.O. Box 11374 Washington, DC 20008

in fo@solitary watch.org

Solitary Watch

Copyright 2022, Solitary Watch

Read about rights and permissions.

Solitary Watch News