Solitary Watch

Criminal Justice Issues and Prisoners' Rights

https://solitarywatch.org/2010/12/10/wikileakers-held-in-solitary-confinement/

Campaign and Advocacy

close Search
close
close
by James Ridgeway and Jean Casella December 10, 2010

Both of the men at the center of the WikiLeaks case are now in some form of solitary confinement, thoughthe differences in their conditions of confinement are significant.

As the Guardian reported yesterday, WikiLeaks editor-in-chief Julian Assangehas been transferred to the segregation unit at Wandsworth Prison, the Victorian rock in southwest London. Assange was remanded to Wandsworth on Tuesday after he was refused bail while awaiting a hearing on his extradition to Sweden, where he is wanted onsexual assault charges.

According to the Guardian, Assangeis thought to have asked to be housed away from other prisoners, who had shown a high degree of interest in him after he arrivedHe has his own cell and because of the consular and legal visits did not exercise, but will normally get one hour a day. Because he is in the segregation unit, his association with other prisoners will be limited. Assanges lawyerdescribedthe prisoneras quite chipper he seemed to be bearing up, but said he had complained about the daytime television at the prison, and added that he doesnt have access to a computer, even without an internet connection, or to writing material. Hes got some files but doesnt have any paper to write on and put them in.' However, the Guardian reports, As part of a scheme called access to justice, prison authorities are arranging for Assange to be given a computer so he can work on his case. The computer will have limited internet access.

Assangestreatment compares quite favorably to that of Bradley Manning, the Army private who is accused ofactually leaking the documents being made public by WikiLeaks.He is getting considerably less attention than Assange. But as Daniel Ellsberghas pointed out,Manning is the realprotagonist of the WikiLeaks storyhero orvillain, depending on your point of viewand the figure comparable to Ellsberghimself. On WNYC radio today, Ellsberg said:

Manning I see as the first person in 40 years who has been willing, as he said, to go to prison for life or be executed in order to get this information to the American people, and, as he said, to cause worldwide discussion, debate and reform. Thats where I was 40 years ago, and I havent heard anyone say anything like that in the intervening period.

Bradley Manning has been held in solitary confinement for the past seven months, first in Kuwait and then in aMarine brig in Quantico, Virginia. Hehas beencharged with leakingfootage of two Reuters staffers being killed by U.S. Apache helicopters in Iraq in 2007, and is a person of interest in the release of hundreds of thousands of military and diplomatic documents. He is expected to face a court-martial sometime in the spring of 2011.

Manning is apparently being held in conditions of extreme isolation, cut off from the outside world and denied visits fromsome members of his own family. As we wrote earlier this year, Bradley Manning can look forward to a long period in solitary confinement before he is convicted of any crimeComplete isolation will be key to silencing this man who knew too much, and who shared what he knew with the American public.

James Ridgeway (1936-2021) was the founder and co-director of Solitary Watch. An investigative journalist for over 60 years, he served as Washington Correspondent for the Village Voice and Mother Jones, reporting domestically on subjects ranging from electoral politics to corporate malfeasance to the rise of the racist far-right, and abroad from Central America, Northern Ireland, Eastern Europe, Haiti, and the former Yugoslavia. Earlier, he wrote for The New Republic and Ramparts, and his work appeared in dozens of other publications. He was the co-director of two films and author of 20 books, including a forthcoming posthumous edition of his groundbreaking 1991 work on the far right, Blood in the Face. Jean Casella is the director of Solitary Watch. She has also published work in The Guardian, The Nation, and Mother Jones, and is co-editor of the book Hell Is a Very Small Place: Voices from Solitary Confinement. She has received a Soros Justice Media Fellowship and an Alicia Patterson Fellowship. She tweets @solitarywatch.

Accurate information and authentic storytelling can serve as powerful antidotes to ignorance and injustice. We have helped generate public awareness, mainstream media attention, and informed policymaking on what was once an invisible domestic human rights crisis.

Only with your support can we continue this groundbreaking work, shining light into the darkest corners of the U.S. criminal punishment system.

by Juan Moreno Haines

October 25, 2022

by Solitary Watch Guest Author

October 13, 2022

by Vaidya Gullapalli

September 29, 2022

Solitary Watch encouragescomments and welcomes a range of ideas, opinions, debates, and respectful disagreement. We do not allow name-calling, bullying, cursing, or personal attacks of any kind. Any embedded links should be to information relevant to the conversation. Commentsthat violate these guidelines will be removed, and repeat offenders will be blocked. Thank you for your cooperation.

wow odd rules in the places he is in now why cant he sleep or ecersie in his cell thats not makeing any sens to me let a lone i tel you what i seen this come to him way befor anything was done siad to a frend bet you he gets his ass thow in solitary for life or something for pissing off the govment hell i not shocked at this piss off the tribunal you end up in the hell of justice poor soul i do feel for him i hope he is well this holday time no one should spend it in the hole thouw unlikely i hope he like spizer did excapes the tribunals rath god wach over him poor soul no one should go thow solitary unwillly let lone a soldar he fights for us may that be light in the darknes of justice

i am glad they leaked out this infoe we have a right to know all i regret is that they did not leak anything on the FBOP i would have loved if they did that man i ben all over it like flys to shit lol realy i would ben trying to get info on that adx and so called range 13 forever love to see that real nubers in solitary if i had theys skilled men on my team the bop would be in for a run for that jobs i like to wach them run to try and cover that buts this time lol but theys men did the pepal a good deed i stand by them in doing so may that be light in the darknes of justice

P.O. Box 11374 Washington, DC 20008

info@solitarywatch.org

Solitary Watch

Copyright 2022, Solitary Watch

Read about rights and permissions.

Solitary Watch News